

NANIA OWUSU-ANKOMAH SACKY

Nania is a litigation and arbitration practitioner at Bentsi-Enchill, Letsa & Ankomah, a first tier lawfirm in Ghana. She regularly advises and represents clients in a range of high value litigation and arbitration disputes and is particularly noted for her innovative approach to solving complex legal issues. She sits as an arbitrator and also sits on the Electronic Communications Tribunal of Ghana, quasi-judicial body with a three-member panel that hears appeals in respect of the regulation and licensing of telecommunications companies, television and radio stations, and internet service providers in Ghana.

Nania is a Councillor of the LCIA Africa Users' Council and was named a Rising Star by Africa Arbitration (July 2019). She was part of the Task Force for the Commonwealth International Arbitration Study Survey and is a member of the IBA Africa Arbitration Network. She is a member of the CIArb, LCIA, ICCA, IBA, AfAA and the Ghana Arbitration Centre. She has authored a number of articles on arbitration and has contributed to a number of publications in the same field.

She is dual-qualified, called to the bar in England and Wales and in Ghana. She has a First Class Bachelor's Degree in Political Science and Philosophy from the University of Ghana. She has an LLM and Qualifying Law Degree from the University of Leeds where she won the Ford and Warren Prize as the most Meritorious LLM Student. She pursued her Bar Vocational Course at the College of Law (now University of Law), London, passing out with an 'Outstanding' and was also awarded a Certificate of Honour by the Honourable Society of the Middle Temple. She is an alumni of the International Lawyers for Africa Flagship Programme through which she undertook a three month secondment with the International Arbitration Practice Group at Hogan Lovells LLP (London).
